By Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 18.—About 1,500 delegates from President John P. White when he opened the 25th convention of the United Mine Workers of America here today for one of the most important sessions the organization has held in a long time. Before the convention adjourns it is expected that a new scale for the coal miners in the United States and Canada.

Wage agreements expire this year in all the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia, Kentucky, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, Montana, Wyoming and Washington. In these states there will be new demands made, and if these powers that control the coal mining industry have their way, coal mining will continue without interruption so long as there is a possible chance of coming to an agreement. President White favors such a policy and has stated that there should be no strike so long as there are honest efforts made by each side to arrange new wage scales.

The union officials mine workers have already formulated their demands and the convention is expected to ratify them without much discussion. This will leave the way open for wide discussion of the proposition to adopt a basic wage scale for all the bituminous coal fields. There will come the adoption of a policy that will affect all districts, anthracite and bituminous.

The Ohio miners have agreed to a 13 per cent increase in wages on the mine run basis and hope to have such a demand in the scale for the wage scale to be adopted by the convention. Other districts are expected to fall in line with Ohio. Leaders of the union say that while industrial conditions are favorable for asking for higher wages and general improvement in working conditions, the general trend of the organization will try to prevent the convention from running wild and making radical demands.

The question of the country's preparedness for war is expected to cause considerable discussion among delegates. The convention is expected to adjourn on Saturday night.

NOT A PAYMASTERBerlin Denies von Papen Abducted

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—A denial that Captain Franz von Papen, recalled military attaché at Washington, paid money to individuals in the United States in connection with attempts to blow up munitions factories or bridges was made today by the semi-official Overseas News Agency. The agency says:

"Captain von Papen's letters and bankbooks which were seized in relation to the safe conduct guarantee to him are of a purely personal character, or had to do with usual business affairs. Captain von Papen never paid money to persons connected with attempts or alleged attempts against munitions plants, bridges or any other American property. No check ever was paid to Walter Horn, who is accused of an attempt to blow up a Canadian railway bridge."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Samuel Comers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today told the National Civic Federation, in a speech often interrupted by applause, that organized labor throughout the United States favored adequate preparedness under certain conditions, which he summarized as follows:

2. Establishment and extension of the citizen soldier, domestically organized, officered, administered and controlled.

3. Prohibition of the use of the militia for strike duty.

ULTIMATUM FOR GREECEBerlin Hears Allies are Demanding Support from Rumania.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, Jan. 18.—Notes to the Greek government amounting to an ultimatum is said by the Overseas News Agency to have been presented by France and Great Britain.

According to a Sofia dispatch to the news agency, Greece is expected to deliver an ultimatum to the ministers of the Central Powers within 48 hours failing which the Entente will take "necessary measures."

ALL EYES FOCUSED ON DEVELOPMENTS IN GREECE

The Balkans continue to be one of the chief centers of interest in the war news, although the Montenegrin plan for peace means the elimination of one of the active factors in the military situation here.

Entente interests appear to be watching closely the situation in Albania and recent advances from London declare that adequate forces are now at hand to defend the country. The belief is indicated in these advances that Italy's precautionary measures in Albanian territory have gone far toward safeguarding the future interests of Montenegro whose military collapse seemed to be considered well high inevitable after the crushing of Serbia.

Little attention so far has been paid in Entente quarters to the report that Allied troops have been landed near Athens as German press utterances indicate. From German sources comes the additional report that a landing of Entente forces has been made at Piræus, the seaport of Athens, east of the Peloponnesus peninsula about five miles from Athens.

Sidewalks everywhere inside the city limits must be cleaned of snow. Mayor Marlett has directed the police to notify residents whose pavements have not been shoveled off to clean them immediately. Otherwise, the mayor has two alternatives; he will either have the work done by city employees and collect the cost from the residents, or he will cause their arrest and impose a fine.

Owners of vehicles are not excluded from the effects of this order, no matter how large the lots are. Several who objected when notified by the police yesterday were given until today to comply.

Patrolman John Barnes found work for a half dozen hours yesterday. A number of families claimed that they could not get anyone to shovel away the snow. The patrolman told them that was an easy matter and in a few minutes produced a team who was willing to shovel snow all day if it provided him with a little money.

Which Marlett is in earnest about enforcing the snow removing ordinance this winter. Large property owners, some of whom never have the snow removed from the pavements in front of vacant lots, are the worst offenders and the police have gone after some of them first.

The police admitted this morning that several arrests were imminent if residents did not comply with the order before the day was over.

Though last night seemed colder than the night before, the official thermometer registered six degrees above zero as the lowest mark. Other thermometers went as low as zero. Chicago reports a record temperature for the entire region with 10 below zero on Sunday night.

NEWS OF THE DAY AS GATHERED UP ABOUT SCOTSDALE

Revivalist is Getting Lots of Prayers in the County Jail.

ATHLETICS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Basketball, Duckpins and Other Pastimes keep the Gymnasium Well Occupied. The Stauffer Barn Burnt. Other News of the Mill Town Folks.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Jan. 18.—It is understood by Scotsdale residents that Rev. O. Brown, who conducted street revivals here, has not gotten out of practice while in jail at Greensburg, as he is conducting revival services while waiting for a hearing on a serious charge preferred by a thirteen year old colored girl. Rev. Brown's fifty-four years of age does not keep him from doing some real shouting while preaching his sermons.

BACK TO THE MEN.

Thomas Love, one of Scotsdale's well known citizens, who has his leg crushed in his Indian Head coal mine some time ago when two miners ran together, was able to return to Indian Head yesterday. With zero weather coal is greatly in demand and Mr. Love is very busy at his mine.

HIS RIBS FRACTURED.

J. Elmer Blackburn is at his Pittsburg street home suffering with two broken ribs that he received at the Old Meadow mine while opening a coal car, when the wrench struck him in the side and fractured his ribs.

TWO DIPHTHERIA CASES.

Two cases of diphtheria were reported to Health Officer Goshorn, that of Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wiley of Overholt's Place, and Leona Horne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horne of 408 South Chestnut street.

The quarantine was lifted from the Weaver home yesterday. The supposed sixth case of diphtheria had not been taken and the other five were released.

IRWIN HIGH WINS.

The Irwin high school defeated the Scotsdale high school basketball team by a score of 22 to 22 at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening. The Irwin boys came by wire, the first shot arriving in good time, but the second one was deflected and did not reach the basket until after the time had expired. When the game started it was fast and interesting. Minnow started for Scotsdale and William for Irwin. The team will play next week at Jeannette. The real game of the season is expected here January 20 when the Dunmore Spartans team will appear on the Y. M. C. A. floor.

The preliminary game was played by the Irwin school and the Scotsdale Y. M. C. A. the latter winning by a score of 25 to 17. Weight and experience told on the Y. M. C. A. boys and but the high school to their defeat.

The Irwin high school, led by Mr. Dalton in the "kick" contest, won by 11 to 9.

TO COLD FOR SCHOOLS.

Owing to the intense cold and high wind yesterday, the attendance at schools was some of the school rooms.

SPECIAL BURNING.

On Saturday evening, about 8:30 o'clock while the family of J. B. Shultz of Kingsley was in Scotsdale neighbors discovered fire coming from under the roof of the Stauffer barn. The Scotsdale fire department was notified and quickly responded. They got water from various sources and Company and fought the fire for some time. The barn was too far gone to do anything with it they saved the shed next to the barn where the automobile and some corn was kept. Mr. Stauffer is very fond in his place of the excellent work done by the fire department. Mr. Stauffer placed the loss at $400 and that of Mr. Rankin, who had some

Indigestion May be Due to Constipation

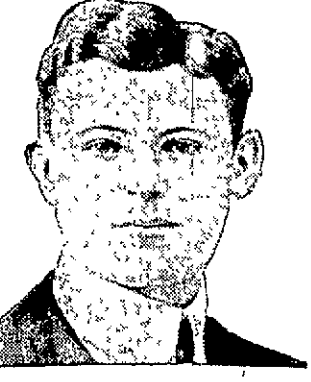

Neglect of Important Function May Seriously Impair the Health.

There are many people who believe they suffer from indigestion when their discomfort really is due to a constipated condition.

Most, with a attendant mental depression, sick-headache, the belching of sour stomach gases, etc., are frequently due to function of the bowels. Relieve the constipation and the trouble usually disappears. The use of cathartics and purgatives should be avoided, however, these shock the system unnecessarily and, at best, their effect is but temporary. A mild laxative is far preferable.

The compound of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle, is highly recommended. Mr. Benj. Bessin, 229 Madison St., Gary, Ind., thinks Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a wonderful medicine. For four years he had a severe case of indigestion and constipation before trying Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which he has found to be a remedy to all who suffer with stomach and bowel trouble.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should be in every home for use when occasion arises. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 111 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE YARDS HERE NEARLY COMPLETE

Connellsville Division Will Soon be Ready for the Big Engines.

COLD WEATHER IS A HANDICAP

Baltimore & Ohio Sends Experienced Men from This Section to Help Get Trains Moving in the Constricted Eastern Terminals; Other News.

With all the heavy work completed the Baltimore & Ohio railroad should have its new turntable in operation in a matter of two weeks. The excavation is all but finished and the concrete and forms are being put in. The heavy beams have been divided and put in place. The work is being done in the open air and the cold weather is a handicap. The men are working in the open air and the cold weather is a handicap. The men are working in the open air and the cold weather is a handicap.

While it has been generally denied for some time that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company intended to increase the pay of all clerks in its employ, it is now given out that the advance will become effective this month.

REBUILDING WOODEN CARS. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad is another company that has undertaken a systematic way to strengthen its fleet of wooden cars by rebuilding them with steel underframes. The rebuilding is being done in the open air and the cold weather is a handicap.

HEADLIGHT FLASHLIGHTS. E. P. Lincoln, who has charge of the excavating and concrete work on the turntable in the Baltimore & Ohio yards, is confined to his home in South Connellsville with an attack of grip. George Miller, a tradesman on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, who fell from the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie bridge near Washington Thursday, is resting nicely. Provided there are no internal injuries he will recover.

D. Richards of South Connellsville, who works on repairs for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, was recently digging out the ice on a crossing with a pick. He struck a torpedo that was embedded in the frozen surface and it exploded, throwing dirt in his face, cutting it severely. He was taken to a physician.

Miss Jennie Smith, the railroad evangelist, will hold meetings regularly by the week in the United Brethren church at Cumberland. At last week's service 25 conversions were made, making in all 40 since her stay at that church.

IF TOO FAT GET MORE FRESH AIR

Be Moderate in Your Diet and Reduce Your Weight With Oil of Kereon. Lack of fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heavy action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed. Put out on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, a serious case of obesity may result. When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat. Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from any draught a box of Kereon capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night. Watch yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of Kereon is also a powerful laxative, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. When a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better. A. A. Clarke—Adv.

RHEUMATICS SHOULD KEEP FEET DRY

Drink Plenty of Lemonade and Water and Avoid Alcoholic Drinks. All this talk that rheumatism can't be cured, that people must suffer terrible agony, gnawing pain and swollen joints until the disease has run its course, is all nonsense. Modern physicians know this, and many of them are prescribing a doctor's prescription, known as "Thumma," which all good druggists keep in stock. To end rheumatism or scurvy and banish it forever, you must fight it and conquer it with something more powerful than the poisonous secretions that cause it. Thumma is a powerful yet harmless remedy, and the very best, but if you do not use it you will indicate to you that the poisons are leaving your system. A. A. Clarke's or any druggist from whom you purchase Thumma will gladly send you back your money if you do not feel better after using the two 50-cent bottles do not "wag" the tongue, but the sharp twinges, and reduce the swollen, twisted joints. —Adv.

DIET FOR STOUT FOLKS.

Food That Nourishes, But That Do Not Produce Fat. Many foods are very nourishing, but do not produce fat. The two kinds which create fatty tissues are fats of all kinds, like butter, lard, drippings (foods cooked in them), and the large group of foods classed as starches. If eaten in excess starch will be laid up in the body as superfluous or stored fat. Following is a list of nourishing foods which will not produce excess fat: Light meats, like chicken, white fish, lean beef; all vegetables except potatoes, peanuts and other starchy kinds; fruits of all kinds except bananas; grains of cereals except oatmeal; rice, beans and cheese; milk (in small quantity); eggs. Beer and all malt drinks increase fatty tendency. The diet of milk and eggs will fatten unless exercise is taken on the body is in a very run-down condition. Cocoa is a fattening drink also. Exercise, plenty of water between meals and a diet of lean meats and many vegetables and fruits prevent fat. Avoid pastries, cakes, fried foods, greasy and starchy. Do not eat between meals. Live in the open air and be active. If possible, perspire freely some time each day. —San Francisco Chronicle.

Egyptian Maxims. An Egyptian proverb which dates back to about 4000 B. C. has the following injunction: "Chatterbox should never be repeated." "Guard thy speech before all things, for a man's ruin lies in his tongue." The wise men of the race early learned good sense.

Nailed by the Ears. During the prosecution of a London east end shopkeeper for adulteration recently the magistrate remarked that in days gone by tradesmen convicted of offenses similar to this were punished by being nailed by the ears to their own doorposts.

"Could you give me the names of some of them to whom I might go with my proposition?" "I could, but I won't," replied the man. "Why not? It is generally done." PETEY DINK—It Looks Like Complications Have Set In, Eh Pete?

By C. A. Voigt.

The hair was snow white. Smead hastily turned his back and went into the bathroom. The son stared astonished at the teetering door. Now what? Smead's retreat, however, did not serve. An hour later he met the white-haired gentleman as the latter was leaving from the dining room. He paused, adjusted his eyeglasses and looked Smead up and down, from his shoes to his head, with insolent amusement.

Smead passed on into the dining room, fury and death in his heart. For this was the one man on earth who had dared to tell him, Michael Smead, truth, plain, black, in dictation as elegant as the voice was hard and cold. Nearly thirty years ago.

"Smead," he heard the old man say to his companion, "Smead, I haven't played a game of billiards in years. Suppose we try a hand."

Smead ate his dinner without relief. He was so confused that he did not question the old man's presence here or inquire into what his errand might be. He could only think that he had permitted him to stare him out of countenance.

"Know that man?" asked the son. "None of your business."

"Ah, I see," Smead said. "He knows you."

Smead left the table without his usual cup of coffee. He felt driven into a corner. Why had he stopped like a fool and given the old man the opportunity? All right, he thought grimly. Let him smile. That smile would never balance the hurt he (Smead) had given.

"Watch him carefully tonight. He may take it into his head to rough it."

"Why not? Getting tender, Donny?" "No, Engin, but I'm rather sick of the whole business. Things have turned up unexpectedly. Sick at heart, if you want to know the truth, over the past, over the future. I'd like to have a window at living straight, doing honest work if they'd let me. South America or South Africa, where they don't know me. Engin, I'm Smead's son."

Engin had ordered coffee, but he forgot to drink it.

An accomplished rogue who did not want to be a rogue any longer. A year ago nothing had worried him money and course easily. At war with society, but at peace with himself. And now this unaccountable upheaval in his soul. Had the sight of Diana set it in motion? Diana, straight and honest as light, brave as the morning sun. Might it not be the constant thought of some one else whom he had wronged carelessly?

A blind, cowardly rage had drawn him into this coil. Could he walk straight with all these ghosts trooping beside him? Like father, like son—was that to be the end of the chapter? To break the spirit, to humble her pride—as if a woman like her would ever surrender to coercion? He found himself at the farmhouse door. He knocked.

"Miss Wynne?" he inquired. "She is waiting in the parlor, sir. This way."

He entered the room, knowing that he was beaten.

She was as beautiful as Palmer Vachell's "Santa Barbara." With all his petty villainies, his tankard-drinking, one thing always burned clearly and purely in his heart—his love for this young woman who was gazing at him with critical, unfriendly eyes.

"You sent for me, Di?" "Yes, sir, sir. I want Mr. Cranford liberated at once. I am the person who is responsible for your present embarrassment."

"You, Di?" He was genuinely astonished.

"Myself. For a long time I have been in the secret service. I usually pose as a stewardess on the north Atlantic liners. I was sent for by one whom we both know and told what had taken place. I gave my word that you should not succeed. A sneak's business I believe you call it. With an ironical smile. Your exploits have been of the darddevil kind, all save this last one. You had courage. It was great sport. I really believe you never stopped to look deeply into the things you have done. But this was base and low and despicable."

"So it was, Di," calmly, "but quite like me."

She started and shot him a puzzled glance.

"Nature," he went on, "is the greatest teacher of them all. Think of what she charges on the loss of a small folly! And I am terribly in debt to her. Don't look puzzled, Di. It isn't better. You have beaten me. Doubtless you have them. If that is the case I'm rather glad of it. Give them back to her. Tell her the rogue is sorry—sorry that he ever crossed her path—from the very bottom of his soul."

Her eyes grew wider and wider. "I'll go out and release Cranford. He fooled us neatly. I never dreamed that you were in this. You're a wonderful young woman. Tomorrow—South America. Di, I've been Smead's son. Michael Smead's. A rare handicap I'm not winning. What's done can't be undone."

"It could only believe you!" breathlessly. "There you are—a liar and a rogue! Who'd believe him? Wolf! Wolf! Too many times I've cried it. Now no one hears."

"Frances?" Diana called. The young man lay back against the wall, his hands clutching at it. The door at the far side of the fireplace opened, and she who was called Frances entered quietly.

She was white, but not more so than the man who stared at her. A tableau in which each pose held nothing but the thunder of the heart. The young man was first to find his speech.

"Di, I marvel at your completeness. Can you forgive me? If you could only have seen into my mind! I never detested—I was selfish and thoughtless—what that house might mean to you. I was where I had always lived. Can't you see? I was like a jar in a potter's oven—madly baked."

"Do you were the first human being I ever loved. I made you out a fairy prince, all my own. And you lied to me—everybody lied to me. But your lies cut deepest and will be last to heal. I forgive you, and if you mean what you say I will do more than forgive; I will help."

A deep breath, then he spoke. "And can you forgive me, Frances? Can you forgive the rogue who tried to break your heart—the rogue who will this night pass out of your life forever? Di, the other night I said you were one of the two things I loved. Frances is the other. A fine joke, isn't it?"

"Frances, it is true, and the knowledge of it is the thing which has started to work havoc or redemption, as you will. I'm going to live straight, and if I wish out still I come back? Yes? No? So be it. But at least I want to go away with the thought that you have forgiven me."

With her eyes she hated and despised him, but her ears were traitors. The sound of that musical voice was more potent than reason, more subtle than time. She had thrown away everything because of it.

"Why did you take them?" "I wanted to humble your pride. I wanted you where I could have a little power over you. If you were powerless there would be hope for me."

The sound of stumbling feet, and Cranford, lagging and begrimed, staggered into the parlor.

Immediately he flung himself upon the younger Smead. Flinging him against the wall with the last bit of strength he possessed, Cranford looked over his shoulder at Diana.

"Who is this man?" he cried hoarsely. "He is your husband."

The younger Smead straightened his collar and the mechanically. With Cranford at liberty, he sensed the danger in which his father and companion stood. He must at least give them fair warning.

"Do you mean it all, Don?" "About going away, of trying hereafter to walk straight? From the bottom of my soul, girl. It doesn't pay, South America. Will you wish me good luck?"

"Yes, yes! Good luck! I shall always be thinking of you."

She stretched out her hand. Donald would always be to her the fun—handsome, charming, whimsical, merry. Diana had never seen her father the day of her arrival in New York, but Donald had visited her at the convent many times.

The young man offered his hand to the other woman, while Diana gazed, the eyes, at the huddled man in the chair.

"Not yet," said Frances shrinking back. "God speed you and God guard you, Donald! I can't touch your hand just now! There are so many black things between it and mine."

"Time enough. But if I win out?" "How shall we know? We'll wait."

"When I come back it will be written on my face and in my eyes." He picked up his hat, looked down at Cranford, smiled oddly, passed from the room and gently shut the door.

No sooner was he gone than the woman who had defied his hand flew wildly to the door and stopped before her hand touched the knob.

"No, no, Frances!" cried Diana. "The man on the veranda passed."

"But I cannot let him carry away that lie. I might never see him again."

"Do not call him back. He must have something to fight for, to win back his life. He has the keenest eyes and the quickest mind of any man I know."

Frances turned and ran swiftly back to her room, closing the door violently. Diana looked sadly at the bowed man in the chair. The knowledge that she was the daughter of the notorious Smead had crushed him.

"Mr. Cranford, are you ill?" "I don't know. I'm afraid to move. I shall fall down."

Diana touched the bell. "Some cold chicken and a glass of milk. Have you any port wine in the house?"

"Yes, Miss Wynne."

"March, bring me the wine first. That'll set me up till I can get back to the hotel. Will you have them fetch up the count? I feel pretty weak."

He slipped the wine, and shortly the glow of it permeated his veins. He set the glass under the chair and smiled. Diana was not expecting that smile, for it was warm and friendly.

"On were to call me Cran he said. 'Cran, I am sorry.'"

"Sorry for what? Who was that young woman?"

"My brother's wife."

"You told me you were married?" "No, Cran, I told you that I could not marry you—any man I might wish to marry. Can I—Michael Smead's daughter—a notorious gambler, a man without feeling or kindness or truth or honor—my father?"

He got up and steadied himself by holding on to the chair. "I must look pretty well banged up. Will you marry me, Diana?"

"No—quietly. Smead's daughter cannot marry a man of your station."

If only he knew how desperately she was fighting! She wanted him—wanted his head on her breast, close to her heart—wanted to run her fingers through his tousled hair—wanted him!

"Come, supposing I took you at your word and married you. Could you introduce me to your friends? I am proud."

"In heaven's name, why not?" His hand slipped from the chair and he crossed the room unsteadily. "Look at me—in the eyes, Diana, and tell me you will not marry me."

"I will not marry you, Cran." Her eyes looked up into his, bravely and unwaveringly. "It is rather cruel of you. I'm helpless; I cannot get up and leave you."

"Do you want to leave me?" "Yes."

"Repeat after me," he said, "I do not love you."

"I do not love you."

"What is your father to me—friends? Out of the world somewhere you have come to me, and I shall not let you go. Will you wreck your life and mine over such a slight phony man?"

"Please go," she begged.

"I'd be a fine lover, wouldn't I? I shall stay here till the sun rises unless you tell me one way or the other."

Love! The kind a woman dreams of—wait for.

A smile quivered on her lips and he saw it. He sensed her hand turned, it pained upward and pressed it against his face. After a moment he looked up.

"You can't say it?" "No."

"You don't want me to go?" "No."

"Will you marry me?" "I ought not to, but I will—whenever you wish. And to make the surrender complete she drew his head tightly to her heart and laid her cheek upon it.

Smead turned the note over and over in his hand. He had not from one corner of his mouth to the other. Occasionally a small wave slipped noticeably against the gunwale and splashed his knees.

His teeth sank into the tobacco. The young fool would be back quickly enough when his money was out. Still, he ought not to have been so rough with him that day in Kingston. But the cool banter of the boy had maddened him.

Suddenly his teeth met with a click, and the clear bounded and rolled down his chest to the bottom of the boat.

Played! He knew now. The boy had him. Possession had given him this courage. A quarter of a million obviously against the gunwale and splashed his knees.

Played! Diana should tell him where the boy had gone, and if it was the last thing he ever did, he would find him. Played all along actually made sport of!

At the farm he called for Miss Smead. There was nobody there by that name. Perhaps it is Miss Wynne you wish to see?

Wynne. So she had taken her mother's name?

"I am her father. I wish to see her."

Cranford the smiling old aristocrat (though at this moment his face was grave enough), the lawyer and a young woman he did not know were standing behind Diana's chair.

Her Brother! He Laughed, Tapped Into a Chair and Bent His Aching Head to His Knees.

The plank gave outward at 5 o'clock or thereabouts. But two more were necessary to admit of his passing out into the cellar and thence to freedom.

Followed a stumbling, staggering journey in the dark, ignorant of how far he was away, persistently onward to the west, still crimson and purple. In all he had come six miles—to find that this man was her brother and that she was the daughter of Michael Smead!

"Di, I'll be getting on my way."

"Di, I'll be getting on my way."

"Memories that bless and burn"

A BEAUTIFUL old story retold; an old song made to live again in new loveliness, with a new appeal, by the blended strains of the 'cello, piano and violin.

Nevin's "Rosary" will always live and be loved. A beautiful fabric it is, woven of fact and fancy—warp and woof a poignant grief and a melancholy resignation. Delicately these instruments trace the pattern, and spread the tapestry again before you—a rendition that will "still a heart in absence wrung."

With remarkable fidelity the recording portrays the thrilling manly appeal of the 'cello and the sweet feminine response of the violin—melody and accompaniment beautifully balanced, and delivered with a restraint and dignity that proclaim the Revillon Trio a company of sincere artists.

With exquisite charm there is given upon the reverse of the same disc, Marshall's plaintive melody, "I Hear You Calling Me"—here a "song without words," another story of darkened romance surcharged with deep emotion.

Again we have a delicate harmonization by the same skillful grouping of instruments—piano, 'cello and violin—an arrangement that has never before been used in recording either song. No matter how many times you may have heard these ballads of bygone happiness, you will want to hear them again in the exquisite new rendition—Columbia Record No. 11815.

Among the most appealing Columbia successes are these numbers in trio form. The voluminous Columbia Record catalog lists a host of them. Let your dealer play for you such a gem as D'Hardelot's "Because," Columbia Record No. A 1735, 10-inch 75c; or "Love's Old Sweet Song" by Molloy, Columbia Record No. A968 10-inch, 75c.

LITTLE HOPE FOR A DECISION IN BOUT OF MORAN-WILLARD

Ten Round Contest Does Not Afford Much Opportunity for a Knockout

NEW YORK LAW IS STRICT

Contests Declared Draw if Both Participants are on Their Feet at the End of Tenth Round; Records Show Knockouts Unusually Come Later

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The proposed bout between Willard and Frank Moran is of unusual interest in that it brings to the heavy-weight title several angles which are unusual in ring contests wherein this title has been involved. Under the laws of the state of New York the boxers will meet in what is termed a ten round sporting exhibition without decision and if both men are on their feet at the expiration of thirty minutes of boxing future records will carry the bout as a no-decision contest.

Consequently the only way in which the heavy-weight championship could pass from Willard, the holder, to Moran would be for the latter to knock out his opponent or win on a foul or deliberate that there could be question as to its intent. It can be seen therefore that the chief interest in the contest hinges on the probability of either Willard or Moran knocking out his opponent and thus demonstrating decisive superiority.

Since the days when heavyweights first donned gloves and fought under Queensberry rules the ring records show that knockouts in bouts in which champions have participated have averaged well over ten rounds. In such powerful fighters as Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Sharkey, Johnson and Sullivan, going back to the year 1900, when Corbett won from Sullivan in 21 rounds, the figures show that seven heavyweights title holders fought eighteen battles in which the championship was at stake.

These contests include those in which the battles terminated in a knockout or a referee's decision. In all 242 rounds were fought and the average rounds to a knockout was approximately 12 1/2. In this list of ring battles are included several in which poor opponents were quickly disposed of, such as the Jeffries-Munroe and Burns-Sullivan bouts. When the list is pruned to those in which the title actually passed, the average is still higher. From the time Corbett disposed of Sullivan and Willard punched Johnson into the esch-championship, Johnson won the title by a decision in 15 rounds and the total number of rounds necessary in the change of championships was 118 which gives an average of very close to seventeen rounds per title holder.

From these figures it will be seen that the chances of a knockout in the ten round bout between Willard and Moran are against such a feat. The records of the boxers themselves when taken in connection with the performance of the prospective opponent would appear to be against the securing of a knockout inside ten rounds. Moran has fought 42 bouts, winning nineteen or about 45 per cent by knockouts and the average duration of his bouts ending in a knockout was five rounds.

Willard has engaged in thirty battles, eighteen of which he won by the K. O. route, giving him an average of about sixty per cent.

The average of the champions' rounds to knockouts in the champions' case is 2 2/3 for these eighteen bouts. That either Willard or Moran can beat an opponent who has fought by record up to these averages when faced by an opponent of the calibre that he will be called upon to meet in this contest is most unlikely.

The announcement that Maurice E. McLaughlin and Thomas C. Bundy may enter the sporting goods business has created a furor in national tennis circles. It is presumed that they expect to continue to play in national and sectional tournaments as in the past.

Under the rather lax methods of the U. S. N. L. T. A. in vogue in past years it is quite possible that since the onset has a number of prominent players who have combined tennis and tennis business without losing caste.

The fact that the National Association subscribed to the recent findings of the I. G. A. A. A. conference on amateurism and will try to read more stringent rules regarding it into the constitution at the annual meeting next month puts an entirely different complexion on the affair. Tennis would receive a severe blow in the loss of McLaughlin and Bundy but they will not be without company if the national body adopts and enforces the proposed rules.

REDUCTION OF CAPITAL

Not Merger is the Union of the Pittsburgh and Alder Coal Companies.

The merging into one corporation of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Monongahela Consolidate Coal & Coke Company last week was not the creation of a new combination, as was inaccurately understood in some quarters. The action was in effect the reduction in the joint capitalization of the companies.

The stock of the Monongahela Consolidate Coal & Coke Company has long been owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, operating under a New Jersey charter. The original capital of the first was $30,000.00 and the second $150,000.00. The new company, which will bear the title of Pittsburgh Coal Company, a Pennsylvania corporation, is capitalized at $20,000,000, half preferred and half common stock.

WERE ASSURED PROTECTION

Americans Told It Was Safe to Proceed into Cuba.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Evidence collected at El Paso by State Department agents indicates that Carranza authorities at Chihuahua assured C. R. Watson, head of the party of American soldiers killed near Santa Ysabel, that no report was necessary. In that opinion, however, many Americans agreed that although they suggested to the authorities the advisability of sending troops with the party.

The advice further stated the Carranza government of Chihuahua gave Watson a personal passport and that the Carranza immigration authorities in Juarez gave a general passport for the whole party. These developments are taken to point to responsibility of the Carranza government for not adequately protecting the Americans.
